

Table of contents

Cover & Credits How to Use this CD Foreword Acknowledgements
About the Southern Sustainable Agriculture Working Group
About the USDA Community Food Projects Competitive Grants Program

Chapter 1: The Problem of Food Insecurity in the U.S.

Food insecurity defined // Page 1
Recent reports profile U.S. hunger // Page 2
Hunger among household types // Page 3
Some ways food insecurity is measured // Page 4
Example of a food insecurity survey // Page 5
Health problems linked to food insecurity // Page 6
Other ways to measure community food insecurity // Page 6
Anti-hunger food program terms // Page 7
Loss of farms tied to food insecurity // Page 8
Dilemmas faced by America's family farmers // Page 9
Another barometer for calculating community hunger // Page 10
Sustainable agriculture offers positive alternatives // Page 11
Food Security Movement addresses rising hunger rates // Page 12

Chapter 2: The Community Food Security Movement

Food Circles Networking Project at work in Missouri // Page 13
History of the U.S. Community Food Security program // Page 14
Relationship of anti-hunger & CFS initiatives // Page 15
How the CFS Movement defines "food insecurity" // Page 16
Five main goals of the Community Food Security Movement // Page 16
Community Food Security Coalition spurring progress // Page 17
Congress establishes USDA Community Food Projects Program // Page 17
A list of Community Food Security organizations in the South // Pages 18-24

Chapter 3: Creating Successful Community Food Coalitions

Austin Sustainable Food Center addresses hunger in inner-city // Page 25
Diversity of people, talents & experience are keys to success // Page 27
Recruiting your initial "core" food coalition membership // Page 28
ACGA manual shows how to organize effective coalitions // Page 29
Gearing up for the community food system assessment // Page 30
Examples of food assessment issues // Page 30
Fundraising & other budget considerations // Page 31
Implementing projects & a publicity campaigns // Page 34

Community food security promotes local agriculture as a counterpoint to the increasingly global and corporate food system. It links low-income consumers with local farmers.

Creating community food projects // Page 35
Getting local farmers involved in CFS projects // Page 37
Ten good reasons to buy food from local farmers // Page 38
Emphasize sustainable agriculture & organic farming // Page 39
Policy issues will present both barriers & opportunities // Page 41
Evaluations help keep programs on track // Page 42
Community Food Security publications // Page 43

Chapter 4: How Food Policy Councils Are Organized & Operate

North Carolina Food Policy Council operates many successful programs // Page 45
What is a food policy council & why create one? // Page 46
Policy councils take the holistic approach // Page 47
Possible funding hurdles for FPCs // Page 48
Knoxville: Home of the oldest food policy council in the U.S. // Page 49
Oklahoma Food Policy Council focuses on farmers & rural residents // Page 52
Oregon FPC targets some of highest food insecurity rates in the U.S. // Page 56
Florida Impact: Interfaith group is advocate for food security // Page 59
Summary: The roles of a Food Policy Council // Page 62
Food policy council publications // Page 63
Food policy councils in the U.S. // Pages 65-67

Chapter 5: Conducting Community Food Security Assessments

Food assessments range from simple to complex // Page 68
Notes on planning for a food security assessment // Page 69
Putting the assessment team together // Page 70
Determining the area to be served & conducting surveys // Page 71
USDA Community Food Security Assessment Toolkit is valuable resource // Page 72
Gathering quantitative & qualitative data // Page 73
Existing & original data, compiled & un-compiled // Page 74
CFSC guide book profiles nine community food assessments // Page 75
What information should we gather? // Page 76
Examples of food security issues to research // Page 77
Suggestions for assessing local agriculture resources // Page 78
Palm Beach County, FL, assessment targets 124,000 hungry people // Page 78
Food security assessment reports available online // Page 79
Community Farm Alliance conducts Kentucky farming assessment // Page 80
Landmark report by Texas group leads to model community food coalition // Page 82
Arkansas Hunger Coalition uses Web technologies to monitor hunger // Page 83
USDA Household Food Security Survey used to measure community hunger // Page 84

Chapter 6: Creating Projects That Build Community Food Security

Kentucky farm couple discovers new markets in food security projects // Page 85
Legal Guide to Direct Farm Marketing covers gamut of food project issues // Page 87
Farmers' markets are proven way to dramatically improve food security // Page 88

Food Security Begins at Home: Creating Community Food Coalitions in the South

Farm-to-Cafeteria sales boost farmer incomes & community health // Page 94
Community Supported Agriculture (CSAs) provide fresh food to subscribers// Page 98
Roadside stands & produce markets can be strategically-placed // Page 100
Gleaning projects gather surplus food for at-risk populations // Page 102
Market gardening & urban farms create local jobs, enhance food systems // Page 104
Community & school gardens teach green skills to young people // Page 106
Value-added agriculture turns unprocessed farm goods into new food products // Page 109
Greenhouses increase food diversity, lengthen growing season, generate jobs // Page 111
Pick-Your-Own introduces hungry people to their food supply // Page 113
Community kitchens: Local food rendered into meals and commercial products // Page 114
Pastured & free-range poultry projects provide farm-fresh meat & eggs // Page 115
Alternative marketing of beef, pork, lamb and goat meat on the rise // Page 118
Farmer Marketing Cooperatives give farmers business clout // Page 121
Buy Local Food Campaigns promote benefits of community-grown products // Page 123
Entertainment farming: Business & educational opportunities for CFS projects // Page 124

Chapter 7: Sources of CFS Funding & Financial Assistance

Types of funders, from private foundations to government agencies // Page 127
Websites offer searchable databases of private & government funders // Page 128
Some church groups funding community foodprojects // Page 128
Community Foundations Locator helps identify local funders // Page 129
Federal Register federal grants information is now online // Page 129
Examples of private foundation funders // Pages 130-132
Federal funders // Page 132
Community Food Projects Competitive Grants Program // Page 132
Community Food Security Initiative (CFSI) // Page 134
Farmers' Market Promotion Program (FMPP) // Page 135
Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program (FSMIP) // Page 136
Fruit and Vegetable Pilot Program (FVPP) // Page 137
Intermediary Relending Loan Program (IRP) // Page 138
Introduction to the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) // Page 139
Marketing Services Branch Program (MSB) // Page 140
MicroLoan Program // Page 142
National Agricultural Library Information Resource Centers // Page 142
Organic Transitions Program // Page 144
Outreach and Assistance for Socially Disadvantaged Farmers and Ranchers // Page 145
Rural Business Enterprise Grants (RBEG) // Page 146
Rural Business Opportunity Grants (RBOG) // Page 147
SCORE Association — "Counselors to America's Small Business" // Page 148
Senior Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (SFMNP) // Page 149
Small Business Development Center (SBDC) Program // Page 150
Small Farm Program USDA/CSREES // Page 151
Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) Program // Page 152
Value-Added Producer Grants // Page 155
WIC Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (FMNP) // Page 157